

Two minutes for looking so good

Hockey-inspired furniture and art, just in time for the playoffs

SHINNY LAMPS

Toronto designer Barr Gilmore's Shiny lamps were made for the Canadian design showcase Radiant Dark. There are two versions: Blue Line, with 10 handmade, solid ash hockey sticks, and Red Line, with an additional two goalie sticks. They retail for between $2,800 and $3,000 at Made (867 Dundas St W); go to madedesign.ca.

PUCK PAINTINGS

Media artist Liss Platt's puck paintings are made by shooting colourful rubber pucks at a goal-size surface and are often incorporated into Platt's performances and videos. The work was shown recently at Latham Gallery in Stouffville and is now traveling to Brandon, Manitoba; go to humanities.mcmaster.ca/~plattl. Ranging from $1,200 to $3,200, Platt's work is also available in Toronto at MKG127 Gallery (127 Ossington Ave); go to mkg127.com.

SCHITCK

Stephen Lindsay recently moved his Urban Product design studio from Scotland to Toronto's west end. His Schtick hangers, made to order with steel hardware that attaches to the ceiling, retail for $98. The Schtick table, with a hand-rubbed walnut or maple top, retails for $440. Soon available in stores across the city, for now go to urbanproduct.ca.
